If you ever get hurt or become ill, living without a paycheck could quickly deplete your savings.

Since a disability will affect 1 in 3 of us, it makes sense to protect yourself now.* That way, you're protected if your rainy day lasts longer than you planned.

Disability income insurance can provide you with income benefits while you're disabled and can't work. It can help you:

- take care of monthly bills
- provide for yourself and your family
- preserve your hard-earned savings
- keep your home safe from creditors
- manage the extra costs of your injury or illness

*Almost 3 in 10 20-year-olds will become disabled before retirement, according to the Social Security Administration, 2001.
